WINDOWS 7 SERIES ARTICLES, EDITION #14

- Help, I'm under attack
  - Malware prevention, removal, and peace of mind

I've also created a separate, more complete article on Malware and how to spot the symptoms and the removal process but this abbreviated version can still help you. The key points to remember are that if you find that your computer has a pop-up that indicates you have a bunch of virus's and you sense that this may not be true, or your computer is running very slow, or if you type in a web page you are taken to another site than the one you were trying to get to - you may have Malware. There are a number of free programs that can be used to remove Malware.

Here are 2 programs I use to remove Malware. If you want more information on spotting and removing Malware see my article titled "Malware, Help I'm Under Attack! It is located on ccarhelp.com. That article includes much more detail and a couple more free programs you can use. If you select Malwarebytes from the link below, make sure you select Perform full scan as seen in the picture at the bottom. I have used this program with great success for quite some time. Remember, it will ask you to reboot after a scan. Make sure you do so.

In the next article you will learn how to make backup discs of your system and as an added bonus how to back up your data in a very simple way.
